QUALITY HEALTH INFORMATION SERVICES FOR NATIVE AMERICANS

NATIVE AMERICAN HEALTH INFORMATION SERVICES

Native American Health Information Services (NAHIS) connects the Health Sciences Library and Informatics Center (HSLIC) to Native Americans in New Mexico. The program offers resources to health care providers serving Native Americans and to community members of the 22 Native nations in New Mexico. The program also addresses the health information needs of the Native American community at the University of New Mexico.

Native American Health Information Services focus on health information delivery, health information training, and collection development consultation.

TRIBAL CONNECTIONS FOUR CORNERS (TC4C) GO LOCAL

This is an online directory of health services linked from the National Library of Medicine's MedlinePlus® web site for consumer health information. It lists hospitals, clinics, dialysis centers, nursing homes and other health-related services in the Four Corners area. Go Local links Native communities in northwestern New Mexico, northeastern Arizona, southwestern Colorado, and southeastern Utah to reliable health care information.

OUTREACH CONNECTIONS: NATIVE HEALTH INFORMATION

Outreach Connections is a wiki that supports networking among those working to improve health information access in communities of Native peoples—American Indians, Alaska Natives and Native Hawaiians. The wiki facilitates access to information on programs that deliver health information to Native peoples. It also assists in collaboration among those whose mission includes providing quality health information to Native peoples.
