Service Lines:

The pathologists and laboratory scientists in the Department of Pathology at the University of New Mexico offer a full range of services that support your LoboCare physician's needs for diagnostic laboratory tests, including all blood and body fluid work-ups, biopsy interpretations, Pap smears, and highly specialized laboratory tests. Our Department provides expertise in all of the following areas to assure that your laboratory work is highly reliable and timely to help you and your doctor make important decisions about your care.

- Surgical pathology
- Hematopathology
- Cytopathology
- Neuropathology
- Renal pathology
- Transfusion medicine
- Cytogenetics
- Molecular and genetic pathology
- Consultation on all routine or complex laboratory

TriCore Reference Laboratories:

The technical part of your laboratory work is done at TriCore Reference Laboratories. This independent laboratory serves the laboratory needs of LoboCare physicians. The majority of its medical directors are physicians and laboratory scientists from the Department of Pathology who assure that the technology is optimal for your needs. TriCore occupies a facility of technologically advanced design, just completed in 2004. In addition to patients who come to the Health Sciences Center, TriCore serves patients at Presbyterian and its affiliated hospitals as well as many other physicians and their patients throughout the region. Half of the Board of Directors of TriCore is from the University of New Mexico; and two are pathologist in the Department of Pathology. The Board oversees the organization in a manner that helps to assure that you and your LoboCare physician always come first with TriCore.
