

Institute of Public Health/SARG

Critical Issues in Minority Health Symposium

“Using Psychology to Reduce Health Disparities
Worldwide: The USCF/SFGH Internet World Health Research Center”

Ricardo F. Munoz, PhD

Professor of Psychology, UC San Francisco,
Chief Psychologist, San Francisco General Hospital

Ricardo Munoz is an Assistant Professor at UC San Francisco, School of Medicine, Department of Psychiatry at San Francisco General Hospital (SFGH). He founded the Depression Clinic at SFGH in 1985 and has been the recipient of many awards, among them the Martin Luther King, Jr. from UCSF and the George Sarlo Award for Excellence in Teaching from the UCSF National Institute of Mental Health. Dr. Munoz has been an invited speaker to such places as Finland, Chile, Peru, Puerto Rico & Mexico and he has written many books, including The Prevention of Depression. His intervention manuals have been translated to Spanish, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Dutch, German, Norwegian and Finnish.

March 15, 2006
3:30pm – 5:00pm

University of New Mexico
Basic Medical Science Building – Room #203

Sponsors: Masters in Public Health Program, Institute for Public Health, Southwest Addictions Research Group (SARG), New Mexico Public Health Association, New Mexico Department of Health, Mental Health Mentorship and Education Program, Institute for Ethics, Center for Native American Health (CNAH), CASAA, Departments of Family and Community Medicine, Psychiatry, Division of Epidemiology, Medicine, Peace Studies, Anti-Racism Training Institute of the Southwest, University of New Mexico Office of Diversity.

