To describe community engagement strategies for a national, epidemiological study

- Largest long-term study of children’s health ever done in U.S.
- Effects of genetics and environment
- 100,000 children nationwide; 1,100 from Valencia County, NM
- Follow from pregnancy to age 21
- Observational study; no treatments or medicines
- Door-to-door household recruiting
- Women who are pregnant or will become pregnant

NCS Study Design
- Core Protocol
- National Sample
- Need for Generalization

NCS Study Process
- High value on and provide for community involvement
- Resources for community assessment and engagement

Community Engagement Continuum

- More Participation
- Less Participation

Engagement Strategies

- Meetings with key leaders and groups
- Billboard campaign “Join Us”
- Community Advisory Council
- Hired Community Liaison
- Television, radio, written media spots
- Annual science fair award
- Presentations to chambers of commerce, city councils, child care providers, churches
- Mailings in water bill
- Banners at schools and day cares
- Booths at community events
- Local newsletters
- Signs in businesses

Adapted from Cronk & VanderBeek, 2008

Engaging the Community When the Protocol Is Set: The National Children’s Study in Valencia County

Beth Tigges PhD, RN\(^1\), Robert Annett PhD\(^2,4\), Sally Davis PhD\(^2\), Andrew Rowland PhD\(^3\), Renate Savich MD\(^2\), Kristine Tollestrup PhD\(^3\), Josala Fetherolf MS\(^2\), Veronica Goforth\(^2,5\), Peggy Gutjahr MSN, RN\(^5\)

1 UNM College of Nursing 2 UNM Department of Pediatrics 3 UNM Department of Family and Community Medicine 4 Principal Investigator 5 Valencia County Resident