

Throughout the past few weeks, as part of our Corporate Compliance and Ethics Week initiatives, the UNM Health and Health Sciences Department included articles in our various communication outlets highlighting compliance-related topics we hope you found interesting and helpful. You can check out all the Compliance Week articles by visiting the Compliance Week webpage. We also featured ways in which the Compliance Department can serve as a resource to you, launched a Learning Central Completion Challenge that encouraged employees to complete the mandatory compliance training modules by respective due dates, and showcased our newly integrated public-facing website.

In addition, we recognized two individuals from within UNM Health and Health Sciences with an ACE Award. The ACE (Advancing Compliance and Ethics) Award is presented to individuals who enhance and promote a healthy, ethical, and compliant working environment. This year's recipients were Carolyn Montoya, Interim Dean School of Nursing and Dawn Harrington, UNM Health and Health Sciences Chief Information Officer. Congratulations to these outstanding representatives of UNM Health and Health Sciences for their support of compliance and for demonstrating excellence in the areas of ethical decision-making and professional conduct.

Dr. Montoya understands and promotes the importance of ethics and compliance to the faculty and staff of UNM Health Sciences. Her unwavering support and collaboration empower the message of compliance and ethics to thrive for the benefit of UNM.

Dr. Montoya has been an integral advocate of the Health Sciences Disclosure of Outside Activities initiative. The outcome of this initiative has a profound impact on the safety of UNM and its staff and will allow both to flourish. Her support of this project is vital to its departments throughout Health Sciences.

Dawn serves on several Compliance Dawn serves on several Compliance Committees including the UNM Health and Health Sciences Executive Compliance Committee; the UNM Health System Compliance Committee; and the UNM Health Sciences Compliance Committee.

Her contributions and insight as a member of these Committees is invaluable and serve to promote and further enhance a greater understanding of compliance and ethics to her staff and to all employees who work at UNM Health and Health Sciences. Read more about all ACE Champions here.

The UNM Health and Health Sciences Compliance Department thanks you for helping us to recognize and celebrate Corporate Compliance and Ethics Week and commends you for all the ways you DO THE RIGHT THING! We remain dedicated to being your trusted business partner in advancing a culture where compliance and ethics are an inherent part of our success.

