

Anthony Fleg comes from the east coast, born in Richmond, V.A. His mother is also physician. He grew up in Baltimore and has been a New Mexican since 2008 when he moved to Albuquerque for a family medicine residency at UNM. He is a family medicine physician and an Associate Professor at the University of New Mexico in the Department of Family and Community Medicine, College of Population Health, and the Department of Pediatrics. He also serves as a Partnership Director of the Native Health Initiative (NHI) and has dedicated much of his career to improving health in Indigenous communities. Anthony's life partner, Shannon, is from the Navajo Nation. He is a proud father of 4 children, an avid runner, and a blogger.