

Food & Drink

“The iconic food that comes to mind for NM is probably green chile. While the tantalizing scent of roasting green chile, a local staple added to everything from pizza to burgers, will make any mouth water there is a wide variety of local food options to choose from. If you find that you have a craving for the best fish and chips in town, then consider a visit to Two Fools. This charming pub, more at home in Dublin than in Albuquerque, delivers delicious Irish fare. There is also a wide variety of restaurants offering varying types of asian, vegan, and south american cuisine among others. New Mexico also has a booming craft brewing scene and a visit to the local Tractor, Bosque or Marble breweries is always a good time. “

-Kelly Harrington, MD