

2021 Emerging Leader Award -Call for Nominations-

The University of New Mexico College of Pharmacy Emerging Leader award recognizes our alumni and who have an outstanding record of achievement in professional practice, service and/or research. Recipients of this award have graduated within the past ten years and they are emerging leaders in their community or profession. These individuals are acting as role models for the next generation of pharmacists.

Selection Guidelines – The successful candidate:

- must be an individual that has been a graduate of the college between 2010 and 2020
- has distinguished themselves in one or more areas of pharmacy as:
 - a policy leader of the profession
 - an innovator in practice
 - an educator in practice
 - a researcher of drug and pharmaceuticals development
- may be nominated by anyone, but may not self-nominate

Nominations:

Please submit a letter of nomination (no more than 5 pages) describing the following about your nominee including:

- Achievements in professional practice, service and/or research,
- Service to professional organizations,
- Record of community service that reflects well on the profession.
- Nominee's abridged curriculum vitae or resume

NOTE:

* Nominations made this year will be included in a pool of nominees for three years. You may nominate a person who has been nominated in the past, especially if you have new information about the nominee.

* Nominators will be notified if their nominee does not receive the award. The College will only notify the recipient.

* Nominators are invited to join the selection committee via phone on --- to answer any questions the committee may have.
